PLEASE, PLEASE, PLEASE don't allow people to use cell phones on planes. It's bad enough we have to listen to other people's personal cell conversations in doctor offices, etc. It will be a NIGHTMARE to be confined to an airplane seat, forced to listen to other's personal, long, and sometimes loud conversations. Airline travel has gotten difficult enough. Allowing cell phone use will create bad morale for flyers who don't want to participate in other's conversations. It's like banning smoking; smoke if you want to, but don't make me smoke with you. If the FCC allows this change to happen, I will do my very best to drive wherever I have to go and never set foot on a plane again.
